

A large crowd of people is seen from behind, walking along a wide path that leads towards a tall, thin monument in the distance. The scene is dimly lit, suggesting dusk or dawn, with the crowd and path fading into the background.

The laws of viability lie at the heart of any enterprise.

So too do human beings

– Stafford Beer, The Heart of Enterprise, 1979

